CHINESE AND THEIR WAYS.

How They Live and Economize, by One Who Knows Them. North China Herald. The Chinese are pre-eminently econnumber of wants, in preventing waste, or in adjusting forces in such a manner or in adjusting forces in such a manner as to make a little represent a great deal.

The universal diet consists of rice, beans, millet, garden vegetables, and fish, with nor less."

The universal diet consists of sice, beans, millet, garden vegetables, and fish, with nor less." nillet, garden vegetables, and fish, with a little meat on high feativals. Wholesome food in abundance may be supplied at less than a penny a day for each adult, and even in famine times thousands of persons have been kept alive for months on about a half-penny a day each. This implies the existence of a high degree of culinary skill in the Chinese. Their modes of preparing food are thorough and various. There is no waste; everything is made to do as much duty as possible. What is left is the veriest trifle. The physical condition of the Chinese dog or cat, who has to live on the leavings of the family, shows this; they are clearly kept on starvation allowances.

The Chinese are extremely fastidious in regard to food; all is sish that comes to their net, and most things come there sooner or later. Certain disturbances of the human organization, due to eating diseased meats, are well recognized a little meat on high festivals. Whole-the human organization, due to eating diseased meats, are well recognized among the people, but it is considered better to eat the meat, the cheapness of which is certain, and run the risk of the consequences, which are not quite certain, than to buy dear meat even with the assurance of no evil results. Indeed, the meat of animals which have died of ordinary allments is rather dearer than that of those which have died in an epidemic such as pleuro-pneumonia. Another example of careful, calculating economy is the construction of the cooking pots and boilers, the bottoms of which are as thin as possible that the contents may boil all the sooner, for fuel is scarce and dear, and consists generally of nothing but the stalks and roots of the of nothing but the stalks and roots of the of nothing but the stalks and roots of the crops, which make a rapid, blaze and disappear. The business of gathering fuel is committed to children, for one who can do nothing else can at least pick up straws and leaves and weeds. In autumn and winter a vast army of fuel gatherers apread over the land. Boys ascend trees and beat them with clubs to shake off the leaves; the very straws get no time to show which way the wind blows before they are annexed by some enter-fore they are annexed by some enterprising collector.

Similarly professional manure collectors swarm all over the roads of the country. Chinese women carry this minute economy into their dress; nothing comes amiss to them; if it is not used in one place it is in another, where it appears a thing of beauty. Foreign residents who gave their cast-off clothes away to Chinese may be assured the career of usefulness of these garments is at least about to commence. Chinese wheelbarrows squeak for the want of a few thops of oil; but to people who have ore they are annexed by some enterwheelbarrows squeak for the want of a few drops of oil; but to people who have no nerves the squeak is cheaper than the oil. Similarly, dirt is cheaper than hot water, and so, as a rule, the people do not wash; the motto "cheaper than dirt," which the soap dealer puts in his windows, could not be made intelligible to the Chinese. To them the average foreigners are mere soap-wasters. Scarcely any tool can be got readymade; it is so much cheaper to buy the parts and put them together for yourself, and as almost everybody takes this view ready-made tools are not to be got. Two rooms are dimly lighted with a sin-view ready-made tools are not to be got. Two rooms are dimly lighted with a single lamp defity placed in a hole in the dividing wall. Chinese, in fact, seem to be capable of doing anything by means of almost nothing. They will give you an iron foundry on a minute scale of completeness in a back yard, and will make in an hour a cooking range, of strong and perfect draft, out of a pile of nud bricks, lasting indefinitely, operating perfectly and coating nothing. The old woman, who in her last moments hobbled as near as possible to the family graveyard in order to die so as to avoid the expense of coffin-bearers was Chinese.

Treasury Decisions on Waste Practically

Treasury Decisions on Waste Practically Reversed.

It is rumored that the convention of the United States Customs Appraisers, held in New York last week, decided that such seconed wools as were admitted by the previous administration at 10c per pound duty as waste, may still come in at waste duty where it is reasonable to suppose that such waste was made in the usual course of manufacturing socured wool into goods, but at 60c per pound duty where the article is manufactured to imitate real waste.

This practically lets down the bars for the importation of scoured wool, at 10 cents per pound duty, that for the past few months has been excluded by treasury rulings, except at 60 cents per pound duty. It is impossible to distinguish between the waste that is made accidentally in the course of manufacturing, and the manufactured article made to immitate real waste. It would have taken the whole clip of the State of Ohio, to make the amount of scoured wool that was admitted as waste during the previous administration. If the action of the appraisers should be approved by the Treasury Department, the injury to the wool growers interests in the United States would be serious.

Lendon Auction's dead last week at LONDON AUCTIONS. London Auction' closed last week at an advance of about 5 per cent for choice wools on the prices current in May. Faulty and inferior wools, such as are Faulty and inforior wools, such as are not imported to the United States, fell off 5 per cent; this enables foreign manufacturers to make cheaper goods and cheaper yarn than can be made by the American manufacturers, because only the choicest wools can be imported, owing to the fact that the American manufacturer cannot pay duty upon the grease and dit, which constitute a large part of the weight of faulty wools. The foreign manufacturer has the wools free, on a basis of 30 to 40c scoured, as against on a basis of 30 to 40c scoured, as agains 80c for such as American manufacturers

Au Unusually short Name.

Paris Letter in Nashville American.

A funny fact came to light recently at the registration of the birth of a child. The happy father was asked the maiden name of his wife, to which he auswered:

"Rose B,"
"Well, how do you spell it? Bee, By,

Bey, or how?"
"Just simply B."
"That cannot be. B is only an initial, not a name." not a name."
"It is all the name my wife ever had nor less."

They could hardly have had less, and an examination of the records showed that they had really never had more. Beyond doubt the B family bears the shortest name in France, perhaps in the world. Only one other name of equal brevity is known, and that is the name of a place. About five miles from Peronne, on the Ham line, there is a commune known as Y. It has some 200 inhabitants. The origin of the name Y is habitants. The origin of the name Y is unknown, and it would be curious to investigate the origin of the patronymic of A Slight Misunderstanding.

dum, on the part of the Cabinet, to the Queen and to the Prince of Wales, concerning the future position of Princess Louise. The Prime Minister and his collesgues have thought it expedient (and very properly) to point out that at present only the lives of her two brothers stand between the Princess and the direct succession to the throne. Prince Albert Victor is going to India in the autumn for several months, and Prince George follows an adventurous profession. If the two brothers died without issue Princess Louise would ultimately succeed to the throne.

No subject could possibly be allowed to become prince consort to a reigning queen, and it is easy to imagine the very embarrassing complication which would be the result of either Lord Fife or any one in a similar position becoming the father to the heir apparent to the throne, or, possibly, even to the actual sovereign. The practice among the imperial and royal families of Europe is for any prince or princess who contracts a morganatic marriage to formally renounce his or her right of succession, and presumably this course will be followed in the present pourse.
